

Dr. Hadi Tabbara obtained his B.Sc. degree in agriculture from the American University of Beirut, M.Sc degree in Soil and Water Science from the University of Arizona, and Ph.D. in Water Resources from Iowa State University. In addition to multidisciplinary academic research and teaching experiences, he served as consultant with CDR/World Bank on water quality, with ESCWA on Water and Sanitation, and with UNDP on climate change. He also served as adviser in Social Corporate Responsibility, and mentor for Startups in Water-Energy-Food-Environment-Health sectors.

Dr. Tabbara's areas of expertise include Water Policy, Water Quality, Sustainable Agriculture, Environmental Technology, and Climate Change.